

Mandy Thomas

Mandy Thomas, a social anthropologist, is presently is director of the Centre for Cross-Cultural Research at the Australian National University. Mandy's present research spans several diverse areas including studies of the migrant experience in Australia, youth cultures, cultural traffic in the Asia-Pacific region and political and social change in contemporary Vietnam. Theoretically her present work is focused upon diaspora, mobility and nationalism as well as conceptualising embodiment and the senses in a rapidly globalising world.