

Inaugural Award for Excellence in Higher Degree Research Supervision, Faculty of Arts (Early Career Researcher).

This award was achieved from a nomination that contained the following comments from students:

'[Dr Maher] engaged at a deep and intricate level with the ideas. Her critically aware and reflective efforts in this regard helped me take hold of the material with greater clarity.'

'[Dr Maher] was instrumental in helping me transform what initially looked like seven discrete chapters into a cohesive whole. Her painstaking attention as she comments on the final draft was brilliant'.

Assoc Prof. David Garrioch, Assoc Dean Teaching said,

I have great pleasure in informing you that you have been awarded the inaugural Faculty of Arts Award for Excellence in Research Supervision. The selection panel, which included a representative from the Higher Education Development Unit, was very impressed by the nomination, by your own statement of teaching philosophy, and by the very strong supporting letters from your former students. I congratulate you on the high quality of supervision to which all of this testifies.
